Effective Leadership

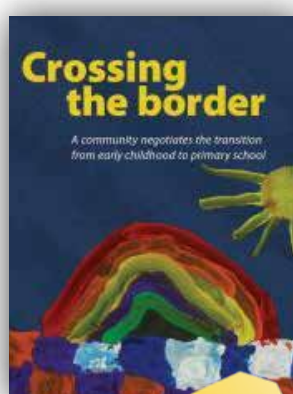

In early childhood services and primary school education in Aotearoa New Zealand. The pukapuka is divided into three parts: leadership in different cultures and contexts, leadership in early childhood, and leadership in primary education. Each chapter, whether based on practical experience or empirical research, contributes to a comprehensive understanding of effective leadership.

Crossing the Border

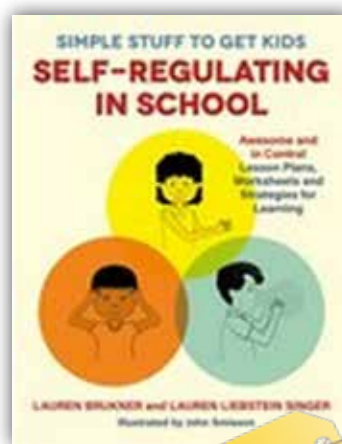

How to provide continuity and build connections between the two sectors has always been a focus for teachers, but up until now there has been little advice as to exactly what this means in practice. This book offers valuable insights into the ways in which one community negotiated this transition. It provides practical suggestions for schools and early childhood centres and analysis of the issues involved in their implementation.

Mentoring in Early Childhood Education

It is the first of its kind: a wide ranging compilation that explores the thinking, pedagogy and practice of mentoring in early childhood education. The editors have drawn on writers from Aotearoa New Zealand and Australia who have carried out recent research into mentoring, as well as experienced mentoring practitioners.
